

The following is from a 1977 newsletter.

SPOTLIGHT on two KELLY MEN

LOWELL J. TUMA
Sales Representative
Kelly Supply Company

RICHARD L. GROTZKY
Sales Representative
Kelly Supply Company

They've got you covered! Working out of Grand Island, Richard Grotzky is now our sales representative traveling east of Highway 281 in Nebraska and northern Kansas, and Lowell Tuma is responsible for a parallel territory — the same areas, but west of Highway 281. Rich has replaced Phil Parks who has returned to headquarters, and Lowell has taken over for Gene Wiles who is now sales manager in the Grand Island home office.

A native of Milford, Rich, his wife, Leigh, and their four children now live in Grand Island. Before joining us in '71, Rich attended the Grand Island School of Business where he majored in accounting. Active in sports during the so-called "formative" years, he now enjoys fishing and hunting as time (his) and season permit. He's a pianist and organist, and he likes to tinker with cars.

Mechanics — along with reading, writing, drawing, gardening and woodworking — are also one of Lowell's divers interests. (His charming wife, Glenda, shares many of them when demands of home, husband and two children allow her to.) A Cornhusker born and bred, he took his place behind our counter more than six years ago and, like Rich Grotzky, has been serving Kelly customers ever since.

There may be two new faces traveling Highway 281 in the months ahead, but rest assured that both these Kelly men are fully competent and anxious to assist you in every possible way when it comes to meeting your needs for industrial supplies. Get to know them; you'll be glad you did!